“...we are a small town in a big city.”

Welcome

TO THE CITY OF ROCKVILLE!

With a population of approximately 72,000, I like to say that we are “a small town in a big city.” Situated 13 miles from our nation’s capital and next to NIH, NIST, and Walter Reed National Military Medical Center, Rockville is known for our business friendliness, educated workforce, excellent schools and welcoming and safe neighborhoods.

Named the 7th Most Diverse City in America by WalletHub in 2020, the Best Place to Live in Maryland by Money Magazine in 2018, and 13th on Livability’s list of the Top 100 Best Places to Live in 2017 (the fourth year in a row the city made the national list’s top 20), Rockville is home to some of the world’s most prominent advanced research, life sciences, biomedical and technology companies. In 2013, Choice Hotels International moved its headquarters to our Town Center.

History

THE CITY OF ROCKVILLE!

Rockville is one of Maryland's oldest towns, with its origins dating back to Colonial America. During Revolutionary times, Rockville was known as Hungerford's Tavern, the name of its most familiar business and landmark.

When Montgomery County was formed by a division of Frederick County in 1776, Rockville served as the county seat and gradually became known as Montgomery Court House. In the 1780s, the community was known as Williamsburgh, named for the family that subdivided the central part of town, when Rockville was little more than a cluster of homes, a tavern, a courthouse and a jail.

In 1801, the Maryland General Assembly officially established the name of the town as "Rockville" because of its location close to Rock Creek. The population grew from 200 in 1800 to 400 in 1846. Rockville became incorporated in 1860 and was governed by three commissioners until 1888, when the city's 400 residents elected the first mayor and council.

The opening of the Rockville depot on the Metropolitan Branch of the B&O Railroad in 1873 brought Rockville into closer contact with the growing District of Columbia, but overall growth came slowly. In the 1930s, this growth was steady but not spectacular. City limits were expanded again, this time to the south, and population rose to 2,047 in 1940. Post-World War II, the Rockville population skyrocketed due to rapid suburban residential development, increasing from 6,934 in 1950 to nearly 45,000 in 1980. As of the 2010 decennial census, the population increased to 61,000, with future growth anticipated along its commercial and transit corridors.

Rockville has grown very rapidly since its founding, from a leisurely, agriculturally oriented county seat to a cosmopolitan city of many neighborhoods. It is home to a well-educated population and serves as an employment center for national biomed corporations, the federal government and county government.

CONSIDERING A NEW ADDRESS?

Less than nine miles from the District line, Rockville offers a robust transportation network for clients and employees to reach your office. Whether they are traveling by car or train, Rockville has it covered with multiple Metro and MARC stations along with direct access to I-270 and the ICC.

ABUNDANT AMENITIES FOR THE MODERN WORKFORCE

Ranked as the Best City for Families by Livability in 2016, Rockville offers a top-notch quality of life that employees desire. Along with nationally ranked public schools, plentiful park space, and numerous artistic venues, the city's diverse population is reflected in the multitude of dining and shopping options.

A STRONG, DIVERSIFIED BUSINESS COMMUNITY

Rockville is a driving force behind Montgomery County's economy with a number of leading businesses across multiple sectors, including biotech, government contracting, high technology, and professional services.

Nearly half (22) of the 49 companies in Montgomery County that made the Inc. 5000 list this year are headquartered in Rockville. We congratulate these and the many other growing companies that support the local economy and help make Rockville a premier business destination.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, INC.

Thank you for choosing Rockville! There are many reasons to love Rockville. We know you love doing business here and that Rockville will continue to be the city of choice for businesses in the 21st century.

Rockville is known for leading in science and tech industry sectors, and it also provides strong professional services to businesses as part of the Washington, D.C., capital region.

Innovation and opportunity thrive due to proximity to numerous federal agencies, including the National Institutes of Health, the Food and Drug Administration, the United States Department of Health and Human Services, and the National Institute of Standards and Technology.

In addition to being Montgomery County's government seat, the city is home to over 18 business headquarters that have access to a wide range of office, flex, and industrial space. Businesses tap into the highly educated and diverse workforce in the area. Sixty-four percent of Rockville residents have a college degree. Rockville has earned a perfect score on the Human Rights Campaign's Municipal Equality Index the last three years, and it was ranked No. 7 on WalletHub's 2020 list of Most Culturally Diverse Cities in the U.S.

Businesses are also attracted to Rockville's quality of life for executives and employees.

“Rockville will continue to be the city of choice for businesses in the 21st century.”

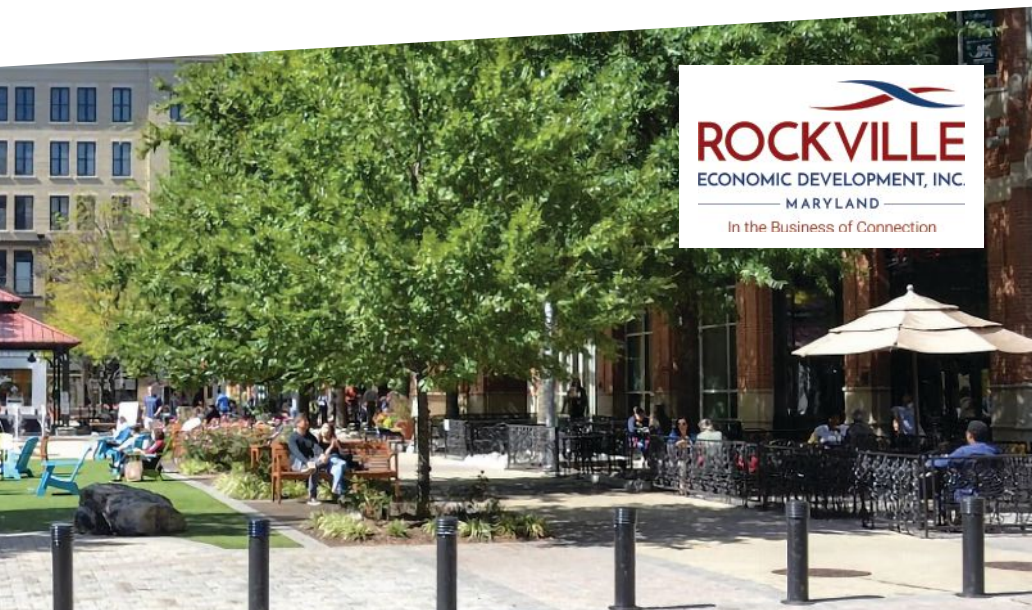

The city has over 1,000 acres of parkland, a nature center, civic center, swim and fitness center, senior center, and a wide array of recreational activities, which contribute to Rockville's rating as No. 1 on Livability.com's list of Best Cities for Families. Families choose the A+ rated public school system, and students have access to Montgomery College's Rockville Campus as well as nine public Maryland universities at the Shady Grove Campus that offers more than 80 undergraduate and graduate degree programs as well as the Johns Hopkins Montgomery County Campus.

If you haven't already, help us make your business at home in one of the most diverse, inventive and growing cities in the nation.
